

The 2006 Georgia LeaderShape Institute

The Georgia Servant Leadership Alliance (www.servantleadershipalliance.org) is pleased to announce the 2006 LeaderShape Georgia Institute. LeaderShape (www.leadershape.org) is a nationally renowned leadership development program for college students.

The LeaderShape Institute was originally developed as a means of improving campus leadership, and now serves young adults in a variety of organizations nationwide. To date, over 18,000 participants from colleges, universities, and corporations from across the country have attended The LeaderShape Institute. This unique six-day program is conducted each summer at various locations nationwide. Each session is comprised of approximately 60 men and women—ages 17 to 25—sponsored by various organizations and colleges from diverse ethnic, religious, and cultural backgrounds. The majority of this highly interactive program is done in groups where everyone is a teacher and a learner. In each session, these young leaders from across the state will learn with and from one another about how they can “make a difference” in their campuses, communities, organizations, and causes.

LeaderShape facilitators will utilize the standard LeaderShape curriculum, but will place a special emphasis on the servant leadership model.

The dates for the program are July 23rd to July 28th. The site for this year’s program is The Darlington School (www.darlingtonschool.org). Darlington School, located in Rome Georgia, is an independent, coeducational, college preparatory school. Darlington's campus covers more than 400 acres, including woodlands and a small lake, around which is grouped most of its buildings.
